Abstract
Methods of Studying Arabic Novel in Saudi Arabia

Aysha Salem Al-Ateeq

Mu'tah University, 2010

In the last tow decades of the 20th century, the Saudi novel came to the fore dramatically whether on the quantitvae or narrative levels.

There was an agreement among critics that the history of the beginning of the Saudi novel went back to the year of 1930 when the "two twins" novel for Ihsan Abdel Qaddous Al- Ansaree was issued. This meant that it the first novel to appear in the kingdom of Saudi Arabia. Therefore, we can say it was the first novel in the Arabian Peninsula as a whole. On the other hand, the critics of the local novel agree that the novel "the Price of Sacrifice" in (1959) for Hamed Al- Damanhoury represents the artistic maturity stage for the local novel.

The critical works noticed the recognition of a number of Saudi narrators for the social changes and the necessity for expressing them and observing the changes which led to them. Thus they wrote a collection of novels, through them they pictured the Saudi society, its problems and its various levels and various environments in a factual alert sense. In fact, they tried to picture precisely the most important social issues that belong to the Saudi society, specifically woman.

Among the most important approaches that critics relied on was the cultural approach whose techniques have been derived from the Islamic approach and the habits and customs. But the most important subject that occupied the culture critics, minds was the culture of masculinity and the parental power against woman.

Concerning the stylistic studies, they hold a distinguished place in the modern critical studies where the critics confined their methodical studies for the Arabic Saudi novel in three stylistic approaches: the expressive or traditional approach, the statically approach and philological circle.
